| SUMMARY | Aim: The aim of this training course is to promote the sending of international volunteers between Yia Programme and EUROMED countries by providing the participants with the knowledge and skills necessary to assure a high quality management of a volunteering project. The idea of this projects stems from the recent re-launch of the EUROMED Youth 4 Programme and the possibility of transferring the Yia Programme best practices and experiences to the EUROMED Programme countries and building new partnerships between the two programmes. INTER-ACCION participates, together with organisations from France, Lithuania, Greece, Morocco, and Tunisia, in the EVS Quality Network and therefore possesses experience and skills necessary to carry out the project. Methodology: The methodology used in this training activity is based on non-formal education and it is fully functional and topic-related. The TC will be aimed at providing the participants – youth workers and projects managers from Yia Programme and EUROMED countries – with practical skills useful for the management of international volunteering projects (EVS and EUROMED Voluntary Service). Objectives |

1. to provide participants with practical skills on EVS project management, both in the YiA Programme and EUROMED countries.
2. to promote the sending and hosting of EVS/EUROMED Voluntary service volunteers between Programme and Neighbouring countries
3. to share best practices and experiences to assure the quality of the projects
4. to promote the European values in accordance with the Programme guidelines
5. to encourage the learning process, by having the participants develop a final project involving the above-mentioned elements.
6. to provide and exchange information about the Youth in Action and EUROMED Youth 4 Programmes.
7. to facilitate the building of long-lasting and reliable partnerships among participants' organisations for future collaboration in YIA and EUROMED Youth 4 projects.
